Early Life

Born September 1, 1907, into a trade-union and socialist activist home in Wheeling, West Virginia. His father, Valentine, was a president of a Brewery local and an active socialist. He taught his children the values of trade unions and Social justice.

The Struggle

At the age of 16 Walter became an apprentice die and tool maker. By the time he was 19, he moved to Detroit, Michigan, taking a job at the giant Ford Motor Company. He was later fired from Ford for his organizing activity. He took the opportunity to travel the world, where he landed jobs working for auto makers in Europe and Russia. He was exposed to the struggles of workers both domestic and abroad.

The ACTION

Walter developed strategic organizing tactics that successfully brought the auto industry under a collective bargaining process. He gained national and international recognition through his progressive approach to labor, earning him several positions:

• President of the Union from 1946 –1970.
• President of the Congress of Industrial Organizations 1952 -1955
• Until he merged the CIO with the American Federation of Labor creating the AFL-CIO and becoming the 1st VP of the AFL-CIO.

• advisor to U.S. Presidents

An avid Civil Rights Activist, Walter was a primary ally to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Cesar Chavez.
TECHNOLOGICAL REVOLUTION

Automobiles revolutionized the entire world...
Germans and Europeans automakers had revolutionized the world with the first modern automobile in the late 1800’s.

Pictured is Gottlieb Daimler and his son Adolf on the motor car (motor carriage), 1886.
The Horse and Buggy was used prior to automobiles. The Cost was significantly higher than the automobile, especially after maintenance and storage costs.
BIRTH OF A STRUGGLE

One man and one car birthed the struggle for Auto Workers in America…
Henry Ford next to one of his early Model T Fords.
Ford had increased the production of his cars, allowing for the cost to go down. Soon more Americans would be able to buy a car. Profits increase for Ford at a record breaking pace.
Ford’s Moving Assembly Line

The moving assembly line brought more production for the auto makers. The fast paced work now required by manufacturers often placed worker’s SAFETY AT RISK.
John L. Lewis of the UMWA and CIO
The Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO), had developed a plan to organize auto workers. President John L. Lewis recruited a young organizer named Walter Reuther.

FACING THE GIANT

Auto Workers were ready to face the Ford Motor Co.
May 26, 1937 “Battle of the Overpass” (Pictured are Harry Bennet’s goons, far left, and Union organizers, including Walter Reuther and Richard Frankensteen, Right center).
Until “The Battle of the Overpass”, many American’s were oblivious to the tactics used by the Ford Company and it’s labor advisor, Harry Bennet.

Pictured is Walter Reuther and Richard Frankensteen, in one of the photos from the only surviving roll of film taken at the “Battle of the Overpass”, after being beaten and thrown down a flight of stairs by Harry Bennet’s Private.
Ford had been the last of the Big 3 auto makers to come under a Union contract with the UAW. On June 20, 1941, Henry Ford signed the Agreement with the UAW. It would be come the best Agreement in the entire industry.
June 20, 1941, The Ford Strike was settled by Henry Ford signing the 1st Union Contract with his workers and the UAW.
CONCLUSION

Walter Reuther a life DONE WELL.
STRUGGLE
Walter had been met with challenges from an early age.

ACTION
Walter met those challenges with action.

INSPIRE
Walter was inspired by his life’s experiences and inspired others to action.
on May 9, 1970, Walter Reuther and his wife, May, were tragically killed in a plane crash. Flags were flown at half mass on top of government buildings across the country and at all three of the Big 3 auto companies. During the May 12th funeral, UAW members at over 300 plants across the U.S. and Canada turned off their machines and halted assembly lines for three minutes to honor their fallen leader, in an unprecedented show of respect and solidarity.
“How has your struggle shaped you?”
Consider your life’s experiences — how have they developed you into the LEADER you are today.

“How has that struggle caused you to Action?”
Reflecting on challenges you have faced — how have your ACTIONS changed your course of your leadership.

“How have you Inspired others into Action?”
Focus on your Leadership — how have you impacted those around you. What is your INFLUENCE level.
My main point is that the labor movement is about that problem we face tomorrow morning... But to make that the sole purpose of the labor movement is to miss the main target. The labor movement is about changing society.
